EGITTO e VICINO ORIENTE

Guidelines for contributors

Articles submittance

Egitto e Vicino Oriente (EVO) is an annual journal published by the University of Pisa and founded by Prof. Edda Bresciani in 1978.

The journal welcomes high-quality research articles and short notes written in Italian, French, English and German, on the different fields of research of ancient Egypt and the Near East, with an eye to cultural contacts with neighbouring areas.

EVO is a double-blind peer-reviewed journal, printed out by Pisa University Press and having online access through JSTOR.

Papers to be proposed for publication in EVO should be sent by email to evo@humnet.unipi.it and, in copy, to the Director Marilina Betrò (marilina.betro@unipi.it).

Format

The text of the contribution should be written in Microsoft Word (.doc or .docx), Times New Roman or Times (12 points), 1 point line spacing.

Footnotes (see below Bibliography) should also be written in Times New Roman or Times (10 points), simple-spaced lines.

Footnotes should be placed above the line (superscript) after punctuation.

Hieroglyphs should be embedded in the text and submitted as separated images as well, .jpg, .tiff, .png and numbered according to their sequence in the paper.

All non-standard fonts used (e.g. Transliteration, Arabic, Greek, Hebrew, etc.) must be provided separately with the manuscripts.

Images, drawings, tables and artwork must be submitted in separate files. Captions of illustrations should be placed in a separate Word file, named "Captions_Surname of the author" and numbered according to the number given to the illustrations.

Articles should not exceed 8000 words (including bibliography), but shorter texts as notes of no more than 4000 words are also accepted.

For both formats, an abstract in English not exceeding 200 words is required.

Copyright

Copyright of all images should be cleared. Authors are responsible for copyright violations.

Furthermore, each author, by agreeing to publish on EVO, implicitly grants permission to publish the e-mail address provided.

Drafts and abstracts

Authors of papers accepted for publication in EVO after peer review will receive one-off proofs at the email address they have indicated, while second and final drafts will be corrected by the editorial staff. They will also receive the final abstract of the journal with their article in PDF format.

Bibliography

Bibliographic references to articles or volumes quoted in footnotes must be in shortened form, indicating the author's surname in small capitals followed by the year of publication, page numbers.

The full list of titles -under an alphabetical order, in case of same author please follow a chronological order- should be added in a separate file or at the end of each contribution under a section titled 'Bibliography'.

Each bibliographical reference in the footnote should be resolved in the final Bibliography by giving the abbreviated form (author's surname + year followed by the sign '=') and the extended version of the cited work.
